Music Ministry

Dr. J. Michael Dennis

Our goal in ministry is to focus ever more keenly on the gospel in our times of worship. And our additions through prayers and scripture readings and specials should only compliment and enhance the beautiful message of Jesus love and sacrifice and life on our behalf.

Here is a modified quote from the book “Corporate Worship” by Matt Merker, the text from which our recent class on Sunday evenings was derived. (Modified to contain more corporate language - “we”)

“We must never lose sight of the reality that worship is all about Jesus Christ. God has reconciled us to himself through the sacrificial, substitutionary death and victorious resurrection of his Son. The Spirit has powerfully brought us from death to life through repentance and faith in Christ. This is why we worship.

[Reevaluating and] reforming worship is a worthy goal. But it’s worthy precisely because corporate worship involves the church, Christ’s bride, whom he has redeemed and cleansed through his atoning work. So we don’t try to change corporate worship in order to make our church seem hipper, smarter, or more profound. We do it because we love the church for which Christ died and we desire for the congregation to grow in holiness, maturity, and love. We do it because we want the whole church to adore and treasure the God of the gospel more deeply.”

My desire is that music and worship ministry at FBCV would be saturated with the living and powerful words of the Bible and that we are expectant and joyful and ever looking to our Savior who deserves all praise and all glory.

I am so blessed to be in the journey of faith with you.

May the Lord bless you, J. Michael
